

Introducing CICA

The Crane Industry Council of Australia (CICA) is the national peak industry body for the crane industry. CICA was formed in 1980 with the objective of providing one voice on matters of mutual concern to the Australian crane industry.

CICA provides the opportunity for owners, marketers and end users to come together through conferences, seminars, meetings and united efforts to represent and progress the industry nationally. CICA is recognized by government, regulatory authorities and the community as the official industry voice on all national matters affecting the Australian crane industry.

CICA's membership includes crane owners/hirers, national marketers, manufacturers and suppliers in all sectors including mobile cranes, tower cranes and vehicle loading cranes.

The authority for the crane industry

CICA Vision

CraneSafe®
(A division of CICA)

CraneSafe Australia was initiated by the crane industry as a voluntary crane assessment program throughout Australia. Developed in consultation with the crane industry as a whole, the program aims to augment existing safety standards with annual assessments of cranes now being made by CraneSafe endorsed assessors.

This voluntary assessment program provides crane owners and operators with a:

- Process for third party independent assessment of safety aspects of their cranes.
- Common, industry-wide system for assessment of their cranes.
- Single method by which crane operators owners, manufacturers, suppliers, designers and importers may fulfill their relevant duty of care obligations under the State Occupational Health and Safety Acts (OH&S).

CraneSafe is supported by State Trade Unions, Workcover Authorities, State Crane Associations and The Crane Industry Council of Australia.

CraneSafe is managed under the industry leadership of the CraneSafe Steering Committee.
